Dear Paul:

I very much regret having had to miss the program which you arranged last week for the members of the current Mid-Career Course. The class have been uniformly appreciative of the overall program and of the insights which it has given them into the working relationships between our organizations. There is nothing I can add to what you already know at first hand of their immediate reactions to the individual briefings.

As I noted in our phone conversation the programmed dates for the visit of the next course are Wednesday and Thursday, the 16th and 17th of September, subject of course to your convenience and approval. I look forward to having your colleague, [redacted] with us, and to being on hand myself for your next series.

Sincerely,

Edward F. Rivinus
Mid-Career Course Chairman
School of Foreign Affairs
